FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

AH&T Insurance's Senior Vice President to Serve as President & Executive Director of TechAssure

Leesburg, VA – February 7, 2008 – AH&T Insurance announced today that Senior Vice President and partner John Love will be taking on the additional role of President and Executive Director of TechAssure, the world's only non-profit organization dedicated to risk management for the technology industry. As a founding member, Love and AH&T have contributed to TechAssure's growth into an international organization serving over 4,000 technology industry clients, including Life Sciences, Telecommunications, and Government Contractors, and placing over $2 Billion a year in P&C premiums.

While Love will continue to serve his clients and the Northern Virginia Technology Council on behalf of AH&T, his new responsibilities at TechAssure will include the development of new insurance products, affinity group programs, and research and development of new services for clients of TechAssure member agencies. John Love commented, "The cumulative knowledge and volume of data represented by the hundreds of risk management professionals at our TechAssure member agencies constitutes a unique resource for our clients. Benchmarking, best practices, and statistically valid predictive models on risk management and transfer techniques are only possible through a heterogeneous and international group such as TechAssure. This new phase for me is so exciting because we will provide such value to clients in an ever-increasingly volatile time for managing risks associated with the use and application of technology."

Each member agency of TechAssure is a regionally-exclusive independent firm that specializes in technology clients. The best practices, training, and education of the member firms are shared via a proprietary web portal, as well as conferences and webinars. Leading underwriting organizations such as Chubb and Travelers turn to TechAssure for research, development and testing of new products and methods of serving the insurance buying public. "TechAssure has a unique place in our distribution force and is an important source of innovation and feedback for the Chubb Group of Insurance Companies; we look forward to working with John in leading the organization to the next level," said James West, Senior Vice President of Chubb.

Love is an 18 year industry veteran and early pioneer in the specialization of technology risk management. He will continue his leadership in AH&T's focus on the technology community of the mid-Atlantic. He is also very active with the NVTC and has managed their successful member insurance programs, RiskNet® and BeneNet, for over 10 years. "Serving at NVTC was an inspiration for many of the ideas and projects I will manage at TechAssure, which will directly benefit NVTC and its members," stated Love.

Alexander Green, President of AH&T Insurance, which is an employee-owned independent broker established in 1921, said "John is an incredibly creative professional who brings a real passion to everything he does. Our continued growth will benefit from the international platform and knowledge base of TechAssure and the new products and services that will emerge in the coming months."
